A Fun and Important Lesson on Lead Safety with Lead Ted!

In the last couple of weeks, Kinder Echidnas, K-1 Koalas, 1-2 Magpies, and 1-2 Goannas had a delightful encounter with Lead Ted—the jolly lead safety guru! As part of our quest to keep our little scholars in tip-top shape, each class ventured into the Health Hub to learn how to be "Lead Safe" in Broken Hill. With fun-filled lessons, they discovered how lead can sneak into our systems and, more importantly, the superhero actions they can take to stay safe.

From the Principal

Welcome to Week 7

I hope everyone had a wonderful long weekend, even if it was very wintery.

Staff are continuing to finalise student reports. I hope you like our new look reports which are now updated with the department's requirements that recently came in. Thank you to the executives that redesigned the report template which looks great!!

Our Athletics Carnival is coming up in Week 9 on Wednesday 25 at Picton Oval. Let's hope the sun is out that week. Look out for the permission note which will be coming home shortly.

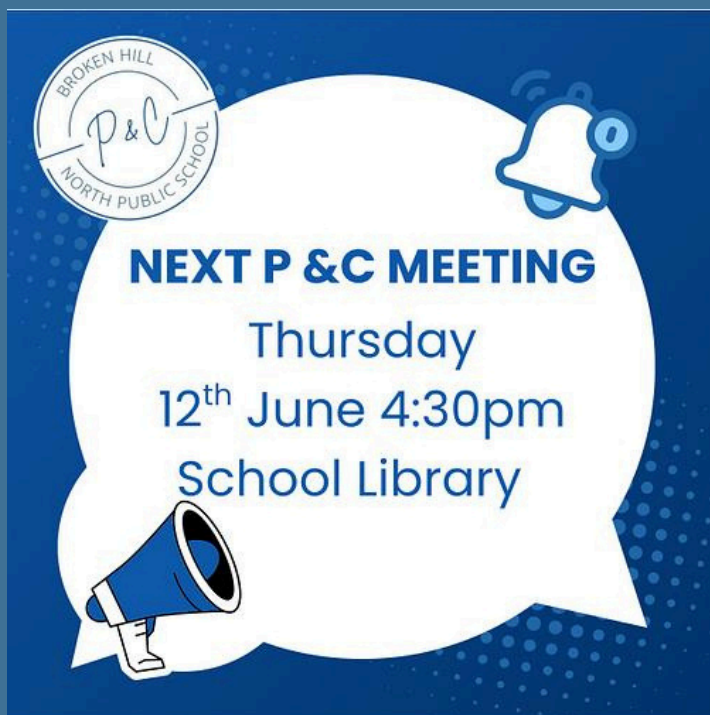

Adopt a Block will occur next Thursday. If your child didn't participate last term, it's not too late to grant permission, either online or via paper notes available at the front office.

The top-secret safety maneuvers included:

- Scrubbing those hands after outdoor escapades or pet cuddles.
- Munching on nutritious goodies to shield their bodies.
- Keeping lead at bay by sprucing up shoes and toys regularly.

The kiddos had a blast with Lead Ted, and we're over the moon to equip them with these vital habits. It's not just about dodging danger—it's about arming our kids with the smarts to live vibrant, joyful lives!

3-4 Platypus have been exploring the world of art with Mrs. Molloy leading the way. Our first project? Creating portraits of our class mascot, the Platypus. We were certainly a cheerful group!

Meanwhile, students are becoming skilled in origami, folding paper cranes with ease. Our goal? To complete 1000 cranes and send them to Hiroshima's peace park.
